

P.O. Box 10,
Rajneeshpuram, OR 97741

7/20/83

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

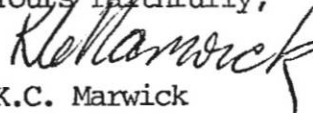

Having spent the past twenty two years in the business of agriculture, particularly dry land farming management techniques, agricultural economics, taxation accounting and investment strategies, in relation to Farm Management Foundation of Australia, and Farm Management Service Laboratory at University of West Australia, and C.S.B.P. Pty. Ltd. (Australia), I wish to state here the effects observable from having Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh present in this agricultural community.

The level of co-operation between individuals allowing joint ownership of land, plant, and equipment, has resulted in a new approach to agricultural management in an area unsuitable for traditional production techniques. This co-operation is unique in an industry normally fiercely competitive and difficult to improve.

Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh through his presence and his teaching has a direct affect on the workings of individuals living here, so that the usual problems of personel management are not applicable because of the degree to which this experiment has encompassed all aspects of living, social as well as economic.

I have experienced the personal side and the management side of living in Bhagwan's presence, and since individuals form the basis of this agricultural commune, it is they who allow the development of the new techniques which are leading to a new approach to managing agricultural production and rural living. I have seen and studied many forms of corporate bodies, joint ownerships, partnerships, etc. and I am convinced what Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh is offering the U.S.A. and the world is the only viable answer to long term problems that extend beyond the agricultural and business implications.

Yours faithfully,

K.C. Marwick