To whom it may concern.

As child psychologist I should like to write you a letter about Bhagwan.

I work in a centre for physically and mentally retarded children where my work is to test them and advise the parents and the group leaders.

I came in contact with Bhagwan through colleagues and books. For me the most important thing is that He taught me the way to self-insight and meditation which is a condition for understanding other people better and therefore necessary for my work.

In my studies I read lots of books on psychology, but Bhagwan taught me how to go into myself and to learn the roots of myself; so that 'knowledge of people' is no longer theoretical, but begins really with knowing oneself and knowing and enjoying life.

He is a man of great quality for humanity and for science. Through Him I have changed a lot. I enjoy life.

Thank you for reading this letter.

Sincerely yours,

J.E. Krajenbrink
