Dear Sir,

Just by telling my live-story,
I can tell you, how important Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, an Enlightened Master, was in my live and I am convince that he can be as important for many others.
As a daughter of a general practitioner, I finished my medical studies, when I was 24. I married and build an engineer and moved to de Coevorden, where I gave birth to two children and was involved in the medical care for the local babies and school children and joined, also as a doctor, a fast expanding family-planning project
After 4 years we moved back to Holland and from Helle to Nigeria, where I worked as a general practitioner for local people and expatriates.
In 1976 we settled down in Holland, where I work as a genetic.
After the excitement of tropical life and changes, I ended up in a kind of early midlife crisis embracing myself with:
what next in live, is this the life until I die?
I started to excuse external things as the reason of my unhappiness etc.

As soon as I realized this, I started therapy, to find out if there was something inside me as the cause of all "problems".

After Gestalt-therapy I joined an ongoing group with a therapist, who happened to be a sanyassin.

Bhagwan's therapies and meditation techniques opened me and not only showed me my games and tricks, but also my natural parts.

The words of Bhagwan in books and on tapes "hit" me some inside, as if he touched my hidden things. I kind of rec

For me Bhagwan was the way to my inner being: I change This had a very positive effect on family life as on my medical work as a doctor.

As a doctor there is much more understanding toward illness and toward the patients, because I experienced myself how frustrations and angry-blocks can cause a lot of trouble and in the end: illness. There is more openness toward the people I work with.

As a mother I am more open and accepting toward my grow-up children and the live together is more nourishing.

Recently I visited Rajneeshpuram; even in silence he is a master for me, a special human being, well as not be described, only be felt and experienced.

Every sanyasin or non-sanyasin, who was touched by Bhagwan will tell a sufficient personal story, about how and when Bhagwan touched their lives.

For me Rajneeshpuram is a place, where, the almost impossible, became possible by people who changed their live and work attitude.

Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh can be a very important person for many people, who want to change their live inside or outside Rajneeshpuram.

So I would really ask you to give them the right to become a panel member. in your country.
