To whom it may concern.

I write personally regarding Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, a man for whom I have the highest regard and respect. Whilst not actually associated with him, nevertheless my wife and I have met him personally and attended his discourses in Poona, and found him a charming person whose philosophies are current and penetrating.

His writings, of which there are many volumes indicate this and whilst they are apolitical and non-discriminational, his love and compassion to mankind comes through strongly.

He is a loving and joyous person and these traits characterise his followers, and from what I have read and heard, the magnificent work in Oregon is no more than an indication of the regard and high esteem in which he is held.

That he left Poona is India's loss, and I feel that any country to gain this very remarkable person would indeed be fortunate.
