To Whom It May Concern:

I have studied educational science and have a degree from the University of Freiburg in Germany. Since 1975 I work as a social worker, being employed by organizations of the Catholic Church which take care of various minorities, particularly Gypsies, psychiatric clients and prison inmates.

I soon realized that a spiritual dimension is needed to solve social problems. No theory can work unless the consciousness of human beings changes.

When I got acquainted with the teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh I felt that this man of exceptional abilities provided this missing dimension. I was so deeply impressed that I decided to become Bhagwan's disciple in 1982. Since then I am using many of his techniques of meditation and therapy in my work. There is no doubt that Bhagwan exercises a great influence, not only amongst his followers but also with many people who are engaged in social work in the free world.
