To whom it may concern:

The first time I heard about Bhagwan from friends which had seen Him or read His books, I tried not to pay much attention, to remain aloof.

But slowly I started to read some of His books. After few sentences from this man (and actually He is more than a normal human being) I understood that He was offering me something far beyond words: awareness, wisdom and an interior world I never had seen or wanted to see before. And He was showing me the path of love. That's why without seeing Him I became His disciple and He is the one I love most.
